A lithium battery charger aids the battery's efficiency and storage process. As mentioned previously, the voltage range of lead-acid vs. lithium batteries matters. Because a lead-acid battery is full at 12.7V-12.8V, most lead-acid chargers won't start bulk charging again until the battery's charge drops below 12.5V-12.7V.

Like any battery charger, a marine lithium battery charger converts AC from an external source (a wall outlet, for instance) into DC current, which is the type of current that batteries accept. When connected to a lithium battery, the charger runs an electric current through it (from an AC external source of electricity), which initiates ...
