Both EcoFlow and Goal Zero offer excellent portable power stations, but EcoFlow tends to provide more value for your money. The EcoFlow Delta series charges faster (0 to 80% in 1.6 hours) and is typically more affordable, with more output ports for powering multiple ...

Ecoflow uses NCM, which is great for rapid charging (0-80% in an hour), but suffers with charge cycles and longevity. For a quick charge back-up solution, I can see the Ecoflow making sense. If using as a backup solution in an overland use case that will regularly cycle/replenish, LiFePO4 seems to be the way to go.
