The Bracken is a shadowy, yet humanoid monster in Lethal Company that can quietly stalk the players and attempt to snap their necks and drag away their corpses to its favorite room within the building. The in-game Bestiary entry has this to say about The Bracken: There is debate on the genus to which the Bracken belongs.

You are never safe during a salvage in Lethal Company. But the deadliest are not the most aggressive of lifeforms. Some creatures like to bide their time and strike when least expected. These ninja-like killers are known as Bracken. And if you want to survive an encounter with them, you will need to keep your head on a swivel.

A Bracken can take four hits before it turns to dust, so keep that in mind when you temporarily immobilize it with a Zap Gun. Sacrifice for the Company: If you aren't running a solo game, another way you can take out the Bracken is by making a noble sacrifice for the Company. Simply step on a landmine as the Bracken chases after you.
