In partnership with the Georgia Power Foundation, this program seeks to uplift Atlanta's seniors in response to these challenges by targeting two crucial areas of support: the upgrading of electrical systems for enhanced safety and efficiency, and the improvement of lighting fixtures in key living spaces to prevent falls and conserve energy.

Explore a history of community development. Politics, power and community development. The power of policy has also been significant. I agree with David Boyle's assessment that the Single Regeneration Budget (SRB) in the mid-1990s, and its innovation of an equal seat at the (committee) table for communities, was a revolution for community power.

It is widely accepted that external power systems cause many local community problems. Amartya Sen (1988), for instance, describes how famine and poverty are partly a result of dominant power structures devaluing oppressed peoples' rights.
