Connect your Seagate Backup Plus portable drive to the USB 3.0 port on your PC and try copying a large file to your Seagate Backup Plus portable drive. If everything is OK, you'll get a speed boost. Click Close when Windows tells you that the best drivers for your device are already installed and restart your PC. (Note: The passage does not directly address the question about getting the drive to run faster, but the suggested action of copying a large file to the drive is a common solution for improving the performance of external hard drives.)
